GENERAL NEWS.

Conkling Loses one Vote, and the Reason Why.

IMPROBABLE RUMOR THAT GARFIELD HAS SURRENDERED.

The Greenback Meeting at St. Louis—Disastrous Storm in West Virginia—A Question on the New Hampshire Vacancy.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

ALBANY, June 8.—The joint convention proceeded to vote to fill the vacancy in the U. S. senate for the short term. Vote: [illegible] 30, Conkling 34, Rogers 17, Bradley [illegible], Wheeler [illegible], [illegible] 29, Folger 1, Lapham 9, Tremain 2, Harris 1, Crowley 5, Dutcher 1.

When the name of [illegible] H. Russell was called he said that on each vote he had thus far voted for the return of the late distinguished senators. They were my choice, and my judgment at that time led me to give them support. Without desiring to make any distinction between these two gentlemen, I regarded Conkling as an ideal senator. I have, however, just returned from my constituents and am convinced by such evidence as should satisfy any fair minded person that nine-tenths of the republicans there are opposed to return of the late senators. I have a duty to perform to the republicans who sent me here, and that is to give voice to their sentiments, and I therefore vote for Cornell.

The convention proceeded to vote for successor to Platt: Platt 29, Kearnan 51, Depew 51, Lapham 1, Cornell 10, Folger 4, Tremain 1, B. F. Tracy 1, Crowley 4. No choice. Adjourned.

Adjournment Resolution Laid Over.

Senate concurrent resolution for sine die adjournment on the 10th inst. was laid over.

An Improbable Story.

The Tribune's Albany: Some singular stories are floating around. It is stated that the president has written a carefully prepared letter to a prominent anti-Conkling citizen in Albany, in which he deprecates the use of the New York custom house for or against the interest of any faction. He says that he appreciates the friendly feeling which prompts the collector and his friends to desire to send as United States senators from New York men who are warmly and entirely in sympathy with the administration, but does not deem it necessary to make that issue, since he only asks the support of republicans, and he believes Conkling and Platt to be true republicans who have nothing against him except the matter of the collectorship, which is now settled and a thing of the past. Especially, he deems it inexpedient to raise an administration and anti-administration issue in a scrambling fight where a protracted struggle or forced compromise might tend to injure the administration as much as signal defeat. He offers a suggestion that it would be both more dignified and advantageous to the administration to give way and return Conkling and Platt than engage in a protracted struggle without being then able to agree upon two distinct opposition candidates of the party and administration. The president thinks that the party has more at stake and more to lose in this contest than any individual. It is reported that Garfield's letter is a very strong one, and has been shown to a select few in the administration ranks.

A word from Conkling.

Conkling gave it out last evening as he hastily rushed off to catch the train in reply to a telegram, that concentration of votes was highly dangerous to his plan of forcing adjournment.

Forgeries.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The Leather Manufacturers' bank has unearthed a systematic plan of forgery for the purpose of defrauding banks in distant parts of the United States. During the past year over a dozen forged drafts have been presented at the bank for collection. One was presented to-day through the Bank of New York and another through the Bank of Commerce.

A Base Scheme.

NEW YORK, June 8.—Yesterday an attempt was made to affect the stock and grain markets by means of a dispatch from a western point announcing the sudden death of Jay Gould. The dispatch was stopped in the Associated press office and the dastardly scheme defeated. General Agent Simonton now reports that the investigation he has conducted shows that the dispatch originated with a syndicate organized for the purpose of disseminating false financial and commercial news. He said that the syndicate has its agents in leading cities in the east and west and London. News [illegible] and the business public need be on their guard.

The Brewers' Strike.

NEW YORK, June 8.—Employing brewers met this afternoon and it was reported that twelve men in Abbott's Williamsburg brewery asked to be taken back to-day at the old rates and were refused, also that at Obernayer & Liebmann's brewery all the men had returned to work at the old terms. A report was also received that all employes of Malpass' Brooklyn brewery, including the foreman, applied for reinstatement in old positions but were told that their services were no longer required; also that brewers of the Messerer brewery had resigned from the union and returned to work. A dispatch was received from Schaeferon & Arnend's brewery stating that a circular been issued to furnish beer to no persons but regular customers. Chas. Seplens it was reported had paid off the employes in his brewery and told them all their services would not be wanted. A telegram was sent to Germany to-day for experienced brewers. Strikers stopped the wagons of Claussen's brewery this afternoon and compelled the drivers to leave their teams. Police aid was sought for protection of drivers. It is stated that all Brooklyn breweries are in operation, and all save five in this city were running as usual. Staten Island breweries are said to be in full operation.

Too Many Passengers.

Adolph Albers, captain of the steamer Silesian, Captain Gustave Meyer, of the steamer Ohio and Carl Wiegard, captain of the steamer Salier, were arrested to-day for carrying an excessive number of passengers. The first-named was held in $10,000, the second $25,000 and the third in $5000, to await action of the grand jury.

A Question in New Hampshire.

CONCORD, June 8.—The indications rather point to the non-election of a United States senator by the present legislature, though the matter is not yet determined. The leading candidates for the nomination, except Senator Rollins, oppose the election. It is understood that ex-Gov. Harriman warmly opposes the election, urging the law against it, and showing that congress refused to pass an act giving the legislature the right to elect. Rollins claims that the election would be constitutional, and that his view is sustained by the opinions of eminent senators. Gen. Stevens, Gen. Marston and William E. Chandler are understood to oppose it. A republican caucus to consider the question will be held.

CONCORD, N. H., June 8.—The senate has decided to ask the supreme court for its opinion as to the legality of the election of U. S. senator at the present session to fill the place of Senator Rollins, whose time expires in 1883. The democrats voted solid against it.

Georgia Railroad Convention.

ATLANTA, June 8.—The Georgia Pacific railroad was organized to-day with John B. Gordon, president, and Col. A. S. Buford, vice-president. Directors, J. B. Gordon, A. S. Buford, T. M. R. Talcott, A. C. Haskell, Joseph Bryan, H. W. Perkins, E. C. Gordon, O. H. Rhindzy and H. J. Jewett.

And this, too, is Important.

NEW YORK, June 8.—General B. H. Bristow and Col. Horace Porter were to-day elected life members of the national rifle association.

A Masonic Adjustment.

NEW YORK June 8.—At a meeting of Grand Lodge, F. & A. M., to-day a resolution was adopted that the grand master be directed to terminate the edict of non-intercourse with masons of Connecticut, and be instructed to solicit the admission of the whole matter in dispute to a commission of their peers for arbitration.

The Summer Ice Crop.

BARNETT, Vt., June 8.—There was severe frost last night in the country around St. John, N. B. Ice formed in several places.

The Greenbackers.

ST. LOUIS, June 8.—Twenty-nine members of the national greenback labor committee are here. After a spirited contest until 11 o'clock last night Jesse Harper, of Illinois, was elected chairman.

Fight between Indian Tribes.

WINNIPEG, June 8.—A courier from Fort McLeod reports a battle on the plains near Fort Walsh between Blackfeet and Crees in which sixteen of the latter were scalped.

Railroad Disaster.

CHICAGO, June 8.—A terrible wreck is reported on the Peoria division of the Wabash railroad near Laharpe, Ills., yesterday by collision between two freight trains which came together while running at full speed. Both engines and a number of cars were demolished; loss $50,000.

Murder in Virginia.

DANVILLE, June 8.—Jesse Smith shot and killed Frank Baker, sheriff, with a warrant for his arrest. Smith escaped.

New Railroad Company.

OMAHA, June 8.—Articles of incorporation of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co. of Nebraska were filed in the county clerk's office here to-day. The incorporators are Jay Gould, A. A. Talmadge, T. B. Drake, S. M. Smith and John L. Webster, the last named gentleman being an Omaha lawyer. The principal place of transacting business will be Omaha, capital stock three million dollars. It is Jay Gould's intention to extend the Missouri Pacific system into Nebraska as soon as possible, and work will very likely begin soon, as a considerable length of road will have to be built if an independent line is run into Omaha, which will probably be the case. As yet, however, nothing very definite can be ascertained concerning Gould's plans, either from what points, St. Louis or Atchison, he is going to build from, or to what main point it proposes to reach first in Nebraska. Gould, Talmadge and others were in Omaha a day or two ago in consultation with R. H. H. Clark, general manager of the Union Pacific, but they were very reticent and secret in their movements.

Failure.

OMAHA, [illegible] Co. of North Platte, [illegible] dealers in dry goods and [illegible] made an assignment yesterday. Liabilities, [illegible]; assets, [illegible].

The Omaha Saengerfest.

OMAHA, June 8.—The grand opening concert of the seventh biennial saengerfest of the Pioneer Saengerbund of the Missouri valley was given this evening before an audience of over three thousand people in Music Hall, specially erected for this saengerfest by Omaha citizens. The saengerfest continues till Sunday evening with a concert every night. A grand parade will occur on Friday. The city is gaily decorated and presents a holiday appearance. A large number of strangers are here, together with singing societies from Kansas City, Leavenworth, Atchison, St. Joseph, Lincoln, Council Bluffs and numerous other cities.

Storm in West Virginia—Several Persons Drowned.

WHEELING, June 8.—By a rain storm last night much damage was done to crops, roads, bridges and railroads. Nearly all trains are out of time in consequence to-day. A family named Strant, living on Glenn's run were swept away in the night, the mother and five children being drowned, and the father carried on a log to the [illegible] sisters islands, where he was found to-day in an insensible condition. The bodies of the mother and two children have been recovered, but the others must have been carried down the river. The weather is still threatening rain. A great deal has fallen here lately.

Fight between Settlers and Utes.

LAKE CITY, Col., June 8.—News reached here this evening that last Monday Wm. May, brother of Richard May who, with [illegible] ranchman, was recently killed by the Utes, organized a company of 100 men and attacked a band of hostile Utes near the Big Bend of Dolores river. After a short skirmish the Utes withdrew, leaving four dead on the field. Since the murder of May and his companions the remaining settlers declared [illegible] of mutual aid in defense of their settlements, and decided not to await the tardy movements of the government's [illegible] negotiations.

As Usual.

ESPANOLA, N. M., June 8.—Two desperadoes, Knowles and Connors, attacked Vorhees store, attempting to rob it, and shot the proprietor twice, probably fatally. The latter returned the fire and the desperadoes fled. A lynching party was immediately organized and pursued. Knowles was shot dead. Connors was captured and returned to-day, and undoubtedly will be lynched to-night.

Robber Killed.

SANTA FE, June 8.—Valentine Martinez was shot and killed by Fred Baxter while attempting to rob the latter's room.

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

DUBLIN, June 8.—The authorities in Dublin are in a state bordering on consternation. Not a single precaution is being neglected to meet any emergency that may arise. The Scot's guards are in readiness to move again in any part of the country at [illegible] hours' notice. Army service corps wagons with full complement of attendants are being forwarded to the disturbed districts as rapidly as they arrive from England. There is every probability that the force in garrison in Dublin will be augmented by another battalion of guards to-morrow. The Dublin flying column goes out in full marching order on what is ostensibly a practice march but there are rumors that the troops will not return to the city. Disturbances were apprehended to-day at Mullingar where a proclamation similar to that which has been issued at New Pallas, has been published, and at Clonmel, where the sales adjourned from last week, will take place.

LONDON, June 8.—A special train with troops from Cork arrived at Skibbereen, county Cork, this morning. An obstruction had been placed on the track to wreck the train, but was discovered in time to prevent disaster.

More Riots.

CORK, June 8.—Alarming reports come from the west of county Cork. Serious riots and disturbances are reported to have occurred at Schull, but the telegraph wires are cut and the roads from Schull to Skibbereen are torn up and obstructed so that it is impossible to obtain authentic news. The cause of the trouble is the intended arrest of Father Murphy, the parish priest of Schull, which the people intended to resist.

A later telegram from Cork states that three miles of telegraph wires have been thrown down. The force which left Cork to-night in two special trains consists of 200 men of the rifle brigade, 30 dragoons, army corps men, ambulance wagons and 12 baggage wagons with no artillery. It is not believed that the priest has been arrested, but the most sensational rumors are flying about. One is to the effect that several bridges between Skibbereen and Schull have been destroyed. This is not authenticated. Even the officials of Dublin Castle have not received any intelligence from the district this morning. The last telegram stated the police barracks had been attacked and assistance urgently needed. Another body of troops with artillery [illegible] Cork in the morning for Skibbereen.

Another Row.

DUBLIN, June 8.—A party of fifty marines sent from Bantry [illegible] was met at [illegible] by a mob [illegible]. After much stone throwing [illegible] the marines were compelled to retreat to Bally [illegible] under the protection of a priest. Two were severely injured. The Skibbereen branch of the bank of Munster was wrecked by the mob. A process server has been so severely beaten at Dromore, county Sligo, that he is dying.

The Irish Outrages.

LONDON, June 8.—The number of outrages in Ireland is increasing. The figures stand as follows: January [illegible], February [illegible], March [illegible], April [illegible], May [illegible] [illegible].

Theater Burned.

The Theater Royal at Belfast, Ireland, was burned this morning.

Personal Views.

LONDON, June 8.—Lord Carnarvon, conservative, formerly colonial secretary, in speaking at Burton yesterday, strongly condemned the policy of the government, which he said were responsible for the state of Ireland. They would find the question not to be land merely, but that every class of property will be menaced. He did not think Englishmen would long be hoodwinked by the reckless rhetoric of demagogues or plausible nostrums of political quacks.

Joseph Chamberlain, president of the board of trade, speaking at Birmingham, said: "It is perfectly evident that the causes of disorder in Ireland are more deep seated than supposed, and are not to be found in the action of this or any previous government, but in the condition of the government itself. Force, he said, was no remedy; but a certain amount of force is necessary to uphold the law.

British Trade.

LONDON, June 8.—British board of trade returns for the month show an increase of £2,[illegible] in imports compared with the same month last year, and an increase of £185,772 in exports.

Business Failure.

The failure is announced of Arthur Norris & Co., iron and metal merchants; liabilities, £75,000.

Big Foot Race.

LONDON, June 8.—The 100-pound foot race, known as the Sheffield Whitsuntide handicap, was won by Smith, of Pittsburg, Pa., against 87 competitors.

Dead.

PARIS, June 8.—Count de Douhet, left senator, is dead.

A Step Forward.

GENEVA, June 8.—It is intended if possible to run trains on the railway through the St. Gothard tunnel by electricity which is to be produced by machines now employed in pumping air into workings and for other purposes.

In Good Health.

LONDON, June 8.—Members of the Cornell crew are in excellent health.

Statue to Victor Hugo.

PARIS, June 8.—Members of the Paris newspaper press intend to raise a statue to Victor Hugo.

Another Mine.

BERLIN, June 8.—A dynamite mine has been discovered close to the Gatschina railway station, Russia, connected with a battery in the railway telegraph office. All telegraph officers have been arrested.

Russian Affairs.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 8.—It is understood that one of the first reforms introduced by Gen. Vannovski, the newly appointed minister of war, will be reduction of the number of generals of Cossacks by six, involving yearly a saving of 180,500 roubles.

Intelligence from Kieff states that a census of Jews has been taken there with a view of expelling those not entitled to reside in town.

MISSIONARY MEETING AT CHICAGO.

The usual well meant but Peurile Talk about Mormonism—General Proceedings.

CHICAGO, June 8.—At the second day's session of the national anniversary of the American Home Missionary Society this morning, after a brief prayer meeting, Rev. N. A. Hyde, of Indianapolis, sketched the remarkable revival now in progress in that city. Short addresses were made by A. F. Sherrill of Omaha, and Dr. Sturdevant of Jacksonville. President Seely then took the chair and Rev. A. H. Clapp read a paper by Rev. Dr. Case, the senior secretary of the society, giving a summary of the society's work since the establishment in 1826, especially in the western states. Rev. R. M. Storrs read a paper on church growth, and predicted a grand battle in which the church should triumph as against the influx of heathenism and crime to our shores from east and west.

D. Haskell, member of congress from Kansas, spoke on the Mormon problem. He characterized Mormonism as a resurrected system of social relationship that is at best but a bestial relic of barbarism. The early leaders of the Mormons were prominently branded as criminals. He reviewed their frequent removals, their growth, and explained their relations to the United States since they removed to Utah. He traversed Delegate Cannon's defense of the Mormons, and pointed out that the doctrine of the church was a conglomeration of piety, immorality and vengeance. Its influences were degrading among children especially. The mortality in Salt Lake was very great considering the salubrious climate, and the only secret of the church's success was [illegible] and the [illegible] union between church and state. The remedy lies with congress, which can stem the swelling tide, but the [illegible], free pulpits, free platform and free press, can do much of the work. It is hoped that disfranchisement may not be necessary.

Rev. [illegible] A. Noble moved that the matter in reference to Mormonism be referred to a committee with instructions to draft a memorial to be presented to congress; carried. The committee is J. M. Seely, F. H. Welsh, J. N. Sturdevant, Jas. White, [illegible] Hammond.

Rev. E. M. Barrows, of Salt Lake, [illegible] Mormonism. [illegible] Nearly all the officers are now [illegible] by polygamists in Utah. [illegible] the territory. Ignorance is the soil on which Mormonism thrives best. He urged the society to provide schools and churches in Utah.

Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri, Indian Territory, Kansas, Colorado, Dakota and other states and territories, were reported by their superintendents to be in a growing but needy condition.

Rev. J. H. [illegible], in behalf of [illegible] on the Mormon question, presented a memorial praying congress and the president that speedy measures be taken to overthrow the evil; report accepted and adopted. Adjourned.

He Needs Diversion.

[Boston Transcript.]

Since the senate adjourned Mr. Garfield wanders about at night watching the cat fights on the area fences. It is so comforting, he says. It seems as though congress were still in session.

THE OHIO REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

Governor Charles Foster Renominated by Acclamation.

SHERMAN TALKS FOR THE REPUBLICAN PARTY AND THE ADMINISTRATION.

Some Good Words for Ohio and Some Hard Knocks at Conkling and Bossism—The Temperance Issue Dodged—General Proceedings.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

CLEVELAND, June 8.—The republican state convention [illegible] W. Townshend chairman.

Foster was renominated by the republicans [illegible] by acclamation. Senator Sherman made a stirring speech upon being [illegible].

Sherman in thanking the convention [illegible] done him, said that the victory [illegible], and would be triumphant. His able and earnest canvass two years ago had helped to win the great victory and culminated in the election of Garfield as president. He referred to the cosmopolitan character of Ohio's population, and said that it represented the whole country. The platform of the republican party is what it has [illegible] twenty-five years. He reviewed the party [illegible] its great achievements. "That which it has done is the best assurance of what it will [illegible] to advance public credit and further pay off the public debt more rapidly and protect every citizen in his rights, cost what it will."

He believed President Garfield's statement in his inaugural that all the powers he commanded will be used for this purpose. The times are auspicious for this great object of the republican party. Bitterness in the south is subsiding, and the freedmen gradually acquiring property. Strong independent friends are springing up among them who will stand by the flag and the cause of human rights. He depicted in glowing terms the future of the fifty millions of freemen in this country. We have not much [illegible] for a leader who commands and dictates. (Great applause.) We have a great people to follow. There has never been and never will be room for a premier or a boss. The man who attempts to command had better make his will beforehand. (Applause). He congratulated them on the auspicious opening of Garfield's administration. We know that office-seeking is the proper pursuit of mankind (laughter), and although places are scarce, we get along on the whole comfortably. The wise financial policy of the last administration has been carried out and amply supplemented. He paid the highest compliment to Secretary Windom for his sound judgment in this matter, but took the edge off by remarking that he was an Ohio boy. The debt which frightened brave men fifteen years ago has melted away like snow before the summer sun. I believe I can say in advance of a resolution that will be offered, that Gen. Garfield has the complete approval of the republicans of Ohio in the course he has pursued thus far. (Applause.) Let him further advance public credit. Let him punish all who do wrong. Let him give us an administration pure, simple and republican; worthy of a nation like ours, and we will send him our approval twice over in the fall. But, my countrymen, we have something to do in this task. We have got to emphasize our approval by endorsing this administration in the [illegible] of a republican [illegible] this fall. [illegible] The republican party [illegible] adversary [illegible] wrong or they will push [illegible] not behave ourselves and [illegible] know [illegible] democrats. Let us [illegible] work as republicans of Ohio know [illegible] victory will perch upon our banners.

J. G. Richards, of Jefferson county, was nominated for lieutenant-governor.

Nicholas Longworth, of Cincinnati, was nominated for judge of the supreme court [illegible] was nominated for treasurer by acclamation. [illegible] Paul was nominated for member of the board of public works, by acclamation, and [illegible] for attorney-general by acclamation. The convention adjourned sine die.

The platform adopted heartily approves and endorses the administration [illegible] and endorses the policy of the party [illegible] of Virginia [illegible] in favor of the liquor problem, and [illegible] Foster's administration. [illegible]

BUSINESS STATEMENT.

Transactions for Last Month the Largest ever Known.

NEW YORK, June 8.—[illegible] returns in the history of the clearing house, with exchanges of $3,[illegible], after deducting the value of stocks sold [illegible]. The aggregate for May at all cities outside of New York is $1,2[illegible], with a national settlement [illegible] to swell the returns for January very largely. [illegible] that month was only $1,[illegible]. The largest previous month, that of December last, was $1,[illegible]. But special causes swelled exchanges at some of the cities in that month and transactions at New York, exclusive of stocks, were only $2,[illegible]. Exchanges for May are shown in the following table.

New York	[illegible]
Boston	[illegible]
Chicago	[illegible]
Philadelphia	[illegible]
Cincinnati	[illegible]
St. Louis	[illegible]
Baltimore	[illegible]
San Francisco	[illegible]
Milwaukee	[illegible]
Louisville	[illegible]
New Orleans	[illegible]
Pittsburg	[illegible]
Providence	[illegible]

These records can have but one interpretation. There is no decrease in transactions for money at a single city, and yet May, 1880, was one of remarkably large dealings outside of this city.

SOLDIERS' REUNION

At Hartford—Secretary Lincoln, Gen. Sherman and many other Distinguished Men Present.

HARTFORD, June 7.—Preparations for the annual meeting of the army of the Potomac and arrival to-night of prominent members of the society indicate a gathering to-morrow of unusual interest. Sherman, Sickles, Slocum and Lincoln are already here.

HARTFORD, June 8.—The parade here to-day in honor of the veterans of the army of the Potomac was a success. General Sherman reviewed the best regiment of state militia, Gov. Bigelow and staff, the secretary of war, Governors Littlefield of Rhode Island, Hoyt of Pennsylvania and Plaisted of Maine assisting, and the crowd cheering.

Generals Burnside, Wright, Franklin, Devens, and others, marched in the ranks with the boys. Several corps associations held meetings in the forenoon. Gen. Miles made a speech to the second corps society which met in public session in the opera house in the afternoon. Mayor Bulkley made a speech of welcome. The oration and poem followed, Daniel Dougherty of Philadelphia was the orator. Secretary of War Lincoln had a seat on the stage, the setting of which was a military camp. The battle flags of Pennsylvania regiments were also on the stage. After the oration, brief speeches were made by General Sherman, Secretary Lincoln, Generals Burnside, Franklin, Hawley, Sickles, Devens, Slocum and Bigelow of Connecticut. A business meeting was next held and officers chosen as follows: President, Gen. Charles Devens; recording secretary, Col. Horatio C. King; corresponding secretary, Col. Geo. H. Sharpe; treasurer, Gen. N. T. McMahon. A committee was appointed to arrange for a general reunion of the societies of the several armies. The next meeting of the corps will be held in Detroit.

Whisky at Home, and Pork Abroad.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The commissioner of internal revenue has issued a circular containing the regulations relative to the changes in capacity by grain by mashes distilleries with a view to existing regulations concerning changes in the daily spirit producing capacity of the distilleries by the closing or opening of the fermenting tubs.

The reports from consuls of the United States on commerce, manufactures, etc., for May, issued by the department of state to-day, the American pork question in Europe is treated in detail. Communications are received from United States representatives on the subject, opposing prohibition [illegible] the several countries. [illegible] Kasson at Vienna says:

"There remains, however, the question whether the U. S. government has done all in its power to obviate every just cause of complaint. So far as I can ascertain the causes and effects upon animal life of hog cholera have not been officially investigated and stated. No system of official inspection in respect to trichina has been established either at slaughter houses, depots or ports of exportation. No investigation and determination has been made whether salting, smoking, frying or the use of other curative processes has the effect of destroying the dangerous animalcule. Therefore [illegible] that some official action [illegible] taken we are not without fault [illegible] on the subject in Europe."

A story with a moral comes from Buffalo. The common council of that city put up the taxes to figures which rose upon manufacturing firm alone $12,000 a year. The head of that firm read of the council's action in his morning paper, and the same day took a westward bound train to look out for another location for his factory. He found another Buffalo manufacturer about locating at Des Moines, Iowa, where the board of trade and the common council gave both a cordial welcome, remitted all their taxes for ten years and gave them all the water they wanted for the cost of pumping.

PITNEY PECULATIONS.

Precedents—How they were Managed.

[Washington Special St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

In what Custodian Pitney has done to cut a point to many precedents. Bureau officers have had their houses furnished in whole or in part at government expense for twenty years, and the same little things have been done about the chief clerk's room. The sales of Custodian Pitney differ however, from other like sales. The most worthless stuff was exposed at auction, and the rest was bid in by favorites at merely nominal figures.

In Pitney's case the rates are said to have been exceptional. On one occasion a large lot of mahogany boxes, which cost the treasury $6 a piece, and which were almost as good as when bought, were to be sold. Many of the clerks went to the sale in order to get some of them. They found that the boxes were sold in a lump. A dealer who was on hand purchased the lot. Nobody was allowed to buy single boxes, nor were the clerks allowed to club together and buy as many as they wanted. The favored dealer turned right around and sold all the purchases singly and at treble the price which he had paid.

It is further related how the fattening few had a run over the store of a well-known grocery dealer in this city. This dealer is put down as one of the most favored of all from whom Pitney bought. There was much fun according to all accounts, in that room. A fashionable club might have envied the enjoyment of those who had the entrance to the room over the store. Whether the owner of the establishment or the treasury paid for the splendid suppers given there is not known. It will be a week or more before the investigating committee will submit its report. It will be of a startling nature, and, it is said, will include another branch of the treasury department which has large patronage.

Two significant facts should not be omitted in this story. One is that [illegible] Tassell, of [illegible] and Captain of the [illegible] was [illegible] honest living [illegible] and on government clerks and [illegible] assessments or commission, are two of the [illegible] of the treasury [illegible].

The Young Nimrods in North America is a beautifully illustrated book for boys, by Thomas W. Knox, author of "The Boy Travelers in the Far East," "Japan and China," "The Boy Travelers in the Far East," "Siam and Java." The Young Nimrods takes its boy readers over the plains of the Far West. A portion of the narrative is credited to General Marcy's "Army Life on the Border," with acknowledgments also to other journals kept by sportsmen. The veritable situations in these books are such as any boy traveler would have on a walking and hunting party and convey much instruction along with the story of the various [illegible]. There are, for instance, "Scenes in a Logging Camp," "Visiting the Traps of the Hudson's Bay Fur Company," "A Bear Hunt," "Deer and Buffalo Hunting, with fishing experiences to carry Catching a Blue Fish, Trout, [illegible], and a Shark [illegible]." There is sport in these picturesque pages by Col. Knox to satisfy any number of Nimrods; and there are upwards of two hundred illustrations, many of which are full of spirit. If the boys of the present day could only see the books with which their ancestors beguiled their time, Jane Halliard's Swiss Family Robinsons, and what not, and compare them with the books of Col. Knox, they would see at a glance the greater advantages they possess. Published by Harper & Brothers, New York. For sale by A. L. Bancroft & Co., San Francisco.

Harper's Cyclopedia of British and American Poetry, is a handsome volume of nearly 1000 pages, within which are gathered all the more distinguished poets of the English language whose names are familiar to every ear, as well as a multitude of others who are not deficient in merit, but fail of distinction because they are so numerous. This collection is edited by Epes Sargent, who was eminently fitted for a preparation of a work of this kind. The publishers in a note justly say, "Few men possessed a wider or more profound knowledge of English literature, and his judgment was clear, acute and discriminating. The concluding pages were put in type only a few days before the genial and cultured editor passed away from the scene of his labors. Projected several years ago it engrossed Mr. Sargent's thoughts and time almost to the very last day of his life, and every page passed under his careful supervision. He designed the volume especially for household use, and he could have desired no kindlier remembrance than that associated with the innocent pleasure and refining influence it will carry to many a domestic fireside." The volume before us is the most comprehensive one of its kind that has yet appeared, though others on a plan somewhat similar have long been candidates for public favor. No other collection equals this in the number of authors, or the extent and judgment of the selections. It covers the whole range of English poetry from Chaucer, Spenser and Shakespeare to the versifiers of our own time. The selections are prefaced by a clear biographical notice of each poet, and indexes of authors and first lines facilitate reference. In compiling this elegant volume Mr. Sargent has carefully chosen such pieces as are peculiarly adapted to gratify and improve poetical taste, "as its present stage of culture and to foster that hope, cheer and consolation which are requisite just now, to counteract the dire influence of a gloomy materialism and philosophic melancholy. Poetry is the voice of humanity. It exceeds all imagination, to conceive what would have been the moral condition of the world if neither Dante, Petrarch, Boccaccio, Chaucer, Shakespeare, Calderon nor Milton had ever existed, if Raphael and Michael Angelo had never been born, if the Hebrew poetry had never been translated, if a revival of the study of Greek literature had never taken place, and if the poetry of the religion of the ancient world had been extinguished together with its belief. The human mind could never except by the intervention of those excitements have been awakened to the invention of the grosser sciences, and that application of analytical reasoning to the aberrations of society which it is now attempted to exalt over the direct expression of the inventive and creative faculty itself. Poetry, therefore, is something divine." It may be said now when it comes forth with the exterior charms which the beautiful typography and other features of this superb volume add to the [illegible]. Published by Harper & Brothers. Next Sunday it is proposed to hold commemorative services of that church at the house of Alva Condit. There will be present, it is expected, all of the original persons who organized the church in 1846 except two—Mrs. Powers, deceased, and the Rev. L. Thompson, who was the first minister, now living in Santa Clara, California. These pioneers are Mr. and Mrs. Alva Condit, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gray, Mr. T. P. Powers and Mrs. R. W. Morrison. The present minister, Mr. Milligan, will officiate.

Intelligencer: The family of Mr. Nelson, living on the other side of Lake Washington, picked from their large field 400 quarts of strawberries one morning, and by 5 o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Nelson had them delivered in Seattle. By 6 o'clock every berry was gone, together with almost as many brought in earlier in the day by Mr. Easter. As these berries are kept at a dozen other places in town, this statement will give readers an idea of the quantity daily sold. The picking of 400 quarts by the members of a single family, with no assistance, was no trifling matter.

THE STATE FAIR CELEBRATION.

Editor Oregonian: [illegible]

I have been [illegible] that [illegible] of the [illegible] Agricultural Society [illegible] and to hold [illegible] exhibitions hereafter [illegible] understand the facts and [illegible] impression, I have been requested to make the statement.

[illegible] has had to meet with [illegible] grounds [illegible] during the [illegible] of the [illegible] years [illegible] every citizen of Oregon is well aware [illegible] the board, in the face of all these discouragements, feeling it was its imperative duty to [illegible] annual exhibition, [illegible] the warrants, [illegible] to pay the premiums [illegible] warrants on the treasury [illegible] of 1880. The bankruptcy and ruin of the society was then predicted by [illegible] current of these terrible reverses, and to restore public confidence, the fair of 1880 was held [illegible], and as all are aware, was a triumphant success; the warrants of 1879, which had been predicted were worthless, being paid at par on presentation, principal and interest in full in gold, as were also the premiums of 1880.

The time for holding the fair of 1881 was fixed in December last, and the national holiday, after much discussion, again included in the exhibition week, in the belief that the society deserved encouragement to assist it in restoring the success of the years referred to. Thousands who attended the fair in 1880, and who will come again, either reside in localities which have never been favored with a celebration, or who prefer to enjoy the excitement and interest of the national holiday in the fair grounds in connection with the other attractions of the day and week. To make the occasion one of interest and pleasure to those people and all others who attend, and having resolved eight months ago to include the celebration as one of the attractions of the fair of 1881, the board are now completing their arrangements for a grand jubilee and celebration with no design or desire to lessen the interest which may be felt in celebrations in other portions of the state. And while I am not able to say what course the board will pursue another year in regard to the time of holding its annual exhibition, I [illegible] that I express the sentiment of the society and its officers when I say, that the national holiday, for many years at least, will not again be included in its annual exhibition.

THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 9, 1881.

THE LUMBER QUESTION.

A journal published at Chicago, devoted specially to the interests of the lumber trade, says that the growing scarcity of lumber will at no distant day, lead to a more wider use of iron and steel. Iron could now be used profitably to a much larger degree than it is, but abundance and cheapness of lumber are still excuses for savage destruction of mighty forests, which, when once gone, are virtually gone forever. But these excuses will not much longer serve in the older parts of the country. At no time in our history has there been such enormous consumption of lumber. During the season recently closed 6,279,350,000 feet were cut in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. The available supply in these states will last only twelve years at the present rate of consumption. Michigan lumber has been shipped to Maine showing that the timber of the old pine tree state is almost exhausted. Pine in Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee is growing scarce, and the spruce is quite used up. A general advance of lumber through all the older states is regarded as extremely probable, in view of these facts.

Exhaustion of lumber does no doubt point to increased use of iron and steel. The probability of this is strengthened by the economies which are being introduced in iron production through new processes and inventions. Lumber must necessarily advance in price, and iron and steel must as necessarily decrease in cost, until at last, a meeting place will be reached, which will stimulate the application of iron and its products to many purposes now dependent for supply on lumber alone. For endurance, safety, beauty and economy iron must sooner or later drive lumber out of active competition in many places, and thus open up a far wider demand for the products of foundries and mills.

But the forests of the great Pacific northwest are as yet virtually untouched; and they now offer the most considerable source of supply remaining on the continent. Development of our railway system will, in a few years, give us an immense lumber trade. The industry will be more important than our fisheries; and it may for a time take precedence even over our wheat. The railroads will make our vast forests accessible to the great treeless region of the interior, and as lumber is now carried from Michigan to Maine, so it may be carried from Oregon and Washington to Montana and Dakota, and even to Chicago. The rapid settlement of the country, to follow railroad construction, will create a mighty demand for lumber over half a million square miles of territory. Within a few years our mountains, where the chief supply is, will be penetrated in all directions and at all points, and the lumber will be run out on tramways or driven down the streams. Ten years from now it will be an immense business. Nothing can be more sure for the demand in the open country, from the Cascade range to the Missouri river, will certainly be met by the supply from these western forests. Here is not only the easy and natural source of supply, but the only possible one. Our forests too, will in time be exhausted, but they are so situated and their extent is such, that they may be considered good for one hundred years' stock; and by that time we shall be an old country and ready for the substitution of iron for lumber, which people of our eastern states are now beginning to adopt.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS.

It is asserted by those who claim to have information as to the views of Postmaster-General James that the first annual report of this official will contain a strong and urgent plea for the establishment of postal savings banks, under a system similar to that existing in England. The English plan has been found to work admirably in that country, and there can be but little doubt but that its operation here would be still more signally successful. It is practically an issue by the government of bonds bearing no interest and redeemable on demand. That such an issue would yield a profit to the government over the incidental expenses of the added department, there can be no doubt. The wages of our workmen, clerks and others who would constitute the grand army of investors average considerably higher than corresponding employments pay in England, and the accumulations of such a banking system, in the course of a few years, would be immense. This surplus invested in government securities would yield an interest that would not only pay all the expenses incidental to the establishment of the system, but would make the entire department self-supporting and leave some balance to go towards the gradual extinction of the nation's debt. Mr. James, it is said, will accompany his recommendation with an array of figures showing the actual benefits of the system in England and the probable results of its adoption in this country. The only objection urged against the measure at this time is that there are legal obstacles in the way that will prevent the utilization of the postoffice department as a bank of deposit. It seems scarcely probable, however, that any objections exist which cannot be done away with by an act of congress, especially when the advantages accruing to the government are so manifestly great. The inducements offered to the depositors are absolute security and the right of withdrawal on demand without notice, sureties which can be positively guaranteed only by the national government.

Speaking of the outlook of the market for western cattle this season, the Chicago Drovers' Journal says: "Just now Chicago canners are unable to get either the kind or quality of stock they want, owing to the high prices and great scarcity of 'native' cows, heifers, light steers and general mixed butcher stock. Lately they have been paying $3@4 50 for cows, and up to $5 25 for choice stock, and they are unable to get enough even at those rates. The several immense canning establishments are anxiously awaiting the opening of the Texas cattle season, as none of them are able to run at anything like full head. Though we are not given to making predictions, yet the present indications point to a wonderfully busy season, and with the Texas Live Stock Journal, we are inclined to think that ranchmen and drovers will be better paid for this season's work than last. At any rate, Texas and western stockmen can rest assured there will be no lack of healthy competition between Chicago canners and beef packers."

The weakness of Turkey is her strength, and her poverty is more valuable in the way of protection than riches. She has little to lose in the way of money or movable property. Yet if driven to the wall the sultan could marshal armies and carry on war a sufficient length of time to bankrupt almost any one of the great powers. The armaments of European nations represent thousands of millions of money all borrowed, ever pound, franc, mark or ruble of it. The national debts of Europe have reached a height where they cannot be increased to any great extent without precipitating bankruptcy. Hence, the great continental powers are under bonds to keep the peace. A collapse of the public credit in Germany, Spain, Austria or Italy would signify a collapse of monarchy, and the wiping out of dynasties and monarchies, at least for the time being. Bankrupt Turkey is therefore nearly as powerful as any European continental nation.

The author of the word "stalwart" was Senator Blaine. The New York Tribune recalls the fact that in the spring of 1877, being asked to make an energetic protest against some phases of President Hayes' policy touching Packard and Chamberlain, Blaine [illegible] sent a lengthy telegram to the Boston Herald of April 10 in the following words, published that day in the associated press dispatches:

"I must also, [illegible] that the Boston press [illegible] represent the STALWART Republican feeling of New England, in the pending issue than the same press did when it demanded the enforcement of the fugitive slave law in 1851."

Mr. Blaine not only coined the word in this sense, but he originated the thing. Mr. Conkling did not find it convenient to be a stalwart until President Hayes deprived him of the New York custom house, but Senator Blaine was always a stalwart from the moment Packard and Chamberlain were deposed.

The new arrangement in regard to the narrow gauge road leaves the Portland loco question among the dead issues and "fatalizes" all that was done in the legislature and elsewhere by such statesmen as John Henry Smith, W. Scott Beebe and Chris. Yates. These gentlemen are now looking to the Portland city election for redress, which is supposed to account for John Henry's frequent and long sojourns here of late as a visiting statesman.

The commissioner of agriculture values the farm produce raised in the United States in 1880 at two thousand million dollars, of which more than one-third was exported. Among the leading articles [illegible] breadstuffs to the amount of $288,000,000, cotton about $221,000,000, while cheese and butter is estimated at $40,000,000.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JUNE 8, 1881.

CITY.

[illegible] Governor Thayer has recently granted the following commutations of sentence to convicts in the Oregon penitentiary: Nathan Tales, sent from Lane county, Nov. 2, 1879, for the term of [illegible] years, for assault with intent to kill. The [illegible] was granted on petition of citizens of [illegible] county and on account of the previous good character of said Tales. [illegible] Ingles, sent from [illegible] county [illegible] for the term of [illegible] years, for [illegible]. Executive [illegible] granted on account of good conduct and [illegible] of sentence being nearly expired. Jerry Dunn, sent from Multnomah county for the term of five years for larceny. Reason assigned for executive [illegible], good conduct and term of sentence being nearly expired. On Monday he commuted the sentence of Charles Gilfoy, sent to the state penitentiary Aug. 8, 1872, for life, from Multnomah county for the crime of murder in the [illegible] degree. His sentence was commuted on petition signed by a large number of influential citizens of Multnomah county, including the district attorney and nine of the jurors by whom Gilfoy was tried, and for the reason that the object of legal [illegible] seems to be fully accomplished in this case. [illegible] was convicted of the murder of one William Wells at Thompson's boarding house in this city. The governor has also granted [illegible] J. M. Tricket, sent to the penitentiary from [illegible] county in November, [illegible] for the crime of larceny and sentenced to two years' imprisonment, [illegible]

[illegible] Bessor, [illegible] has been under investigation for [illegible] post. The case was [illegible] referred by Judge [illegible] to examine [illegible] facts and law [illegible] report [illegible] Bessor's official bond [illegible] as required by law. Judge [illegible] that the city is [illegible] $[illegible] of Bessor. The referee [illegible] earned outside of the city, [illegible] the city cannot recover that amount from [illegible]. The report of the referee will come before [illegible] in a few days.

STATE UNIVERSITY. The commencement exercises at the state university at Eugene City will take place during the coming week. Whitney L. Boise of Salem, class of '80, will deliver the annual address before the alumni. Following is a list of the members of the graduating class: C. A. Woodly, C. M. Hill, Geo. E. Bushnell, C. S. Williams, Miss Anna Whiteaker, of Eugene city, and E. E. Burke and D. J. Maxwell of Portland. Bishop Morris of this city will preach the baccalaureate sermon next Sunday. On the Tuesday following Rev. T. L. Eliot will deliver an address before the university, and on Wednesday Rev. J. H. Acton will address the literary societies connected therewith. A class tree will be planted by the class of '81 in the grounds on Wednesday afternoon, June 15th. The graduating exercises will take place on the morning of the same day.

PICNIC AND EXCURSION. A grand picnic and excursion will be given by the Hibernian Benevolent Society on Thursday, June 16th. Willamette Grove has been selected as the place. The steamer City of Quincy has been chartered for the day, and will leave the foot of Morrison street at 10 A. M., 1 P. M., 12 M. and [illegible] P. M. Excellent music has been provided. During the day there will be number of sports for which prizes will be given. No disreputable characters will be allowed.

ILL.—Capt. Pohlman, commander of the O. R. & N. Co.'s steamship Oregon is confined to his home at San Francisco, on account of severe sickness. The Oregon arrived here on Tuesday in charge of Capt. Brichmann of the steamship fleet. The illness of Capt. Pohlman is not of a character to cause his friends any apprehensions as to his recovery.

FOR LADIES ONLY. Tonight the regular prayer and conference meeting at the First Congregational church will give place to a ladies' missionary meeting. Mrs. Walker, from [illegible] China, will address the meeting, which will begin promptly at [illegible] o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all the ladies of Portland.

[illegible] The American bark Alden Besse, which has been in quarantine at Astoria for the [illegible], arrived here yesterday afternoon [illegible] of the steamer Oklahama. Besse's bringing a large assortment of Chinese merchandise [illegible]

[illegible] CASE.—The important case of [illegible] Columbia vs. George Marshall & Co., was [illegible] yesterday in the United States circuit court. [illegible] the testimony closed and the argument [illegible]

[illegible] The executive and [illegible] committees, appointed to make arrangements for celebrating the coming Fourth of July, will meet this Thursday evening at the council chamber at [illegible] o'clock. A full attendance is desirable.

[illegible] After deliberating [illegible] upon the case of Belew vs. Hawkett et al, tried in the U. S. circuit court, failed to agree. [illegible] were [illegible] differences. The court discharged the jurors yesterday [illegible]

TAKEN TO SALEM.—N. Dickson, who was convicted in the state circuit court of the crime of uttering a forged note, and sentenced to the penitentiary for two years, was taken to Salem last evening in charge of the deputy sheriff.

TO VANCOUVER.—Lilly Lodge I. O. G. T. will give a picnic and excursion to Vancouver on Saturday, June 11. The handsome steamer Washington has been chartered for the occasion. Full particulars will be found elsewhere.

FARE REDUCED.—Commencing to-morrow and continuing until further notice, the steamer Vancouver will charge only 25 cents for the round trip to Vancouver. Cheap traveling, that.

MAIL BY STEAMER.—The steamer Oregon, which arrived here yesterday afternoon, brought 38 sacks of mail, nine registered pouches and seven cases.

BODY FOUND.

The remains of James McConnell, who fell from the pontoon at the foot of Stark street last Thursday evening, and was drowned, were recovered yesterday morning about 7 o'clock. The body rose to the surface of the water just below the foot of Stark street, and a few yards above Mr. Hall's boathouse. It was towed alongside the boathouse, by the young man in charge of the place, and Coroner Garnold notified. Subsequently the remains were placed in a box and conveyed to the morgue, where an inquest was held. The body was in a very bad state of preservation, owing to its being so long exposed to the water. The following is the verdict of the jury:

We, the jury, find that James McConnell came to his death by accidental drowning by falling off the pontoon at the foot of Stark street ferry into the river, and we do recommend the ferry company to place gates at each end of the ferry route to be shut on the departure of said ferry boat in order to avoid future accident.

GRADUATING EXERCISES

Of St. Helen's Hall Yesterday. Address by Bishop Morris. List of Graduates.

The graduating exercises of St. Helen's Hall took place yesterday afternoon, were witnessed by an audience that overfilled the school room and chapel. From one to three o'clock hundreds visited the studio where many specimens of drawing, water colors and painting, all executed by pupils during the past year, were shown. The work plainly indicates a steady improvement in this branch of art, some of the pieces being gems. At three o'clock the exercises began [illegible] room. The graduates were the following young ladies: Misses Mary [illegible], Margaret [illegible], Elizabeth Irving, of New Westminster [illegible] M. Kenny, Olympia, W. T.; Mary E. Strandler and Susan Whalley. On account of her [illegible] recent death, Miss Clara [illegible], who has finished the course, was not present. After listening to the well written essays [illegible] assemblage went to the chapel, [illegible] Bishop Morris delivered the following address:

My Dear Friends: We come on this occasion to the [illegible] of the 12th year of St. Helen's hall. [illegible] has been carried on this year much as in the past, by thirteen teachers and a matron, with a chaplain and rector. Three of these teachers are engaged in the musical department, one in the art department, two in higher mathematics, two in higher literature and belles lettres, two in ancient and modern languages, two in the preparatory department and one in writing. [illegible] pupils in the English department [illegible] boarders. We have had [illegible] pupils in the [illegible] department, 12 to study French [illegible]

Our girls have done well. [illegible] branches. The highest Latin class have [illegible] Tacitus; the second class [illegible] Virgil; the third, the Latin reader, and [illegible] the class of beginners have of course studied the first Latin grammar [illegible]

In the French department we have a [illegible] taught in France [illegible] has ever [illegible]

We have had [illegible] that the art [illegible] to write [illegible]

The [illegible] art department is so well established [illegible] We know that St. Helen's [illegible] Portland in the study of the [illegible] and we have the testimony of the best [illegible] quarters as to the artistic rendering of classical music by the pupils who have gone out from us. You have seen the result of the art department for yourselves this afternoon. This is the work of the girls themselves. It is their teachers' part to make them work, and not do all for them.

I feel that I ought to say something of the remarkable exemption from sickness among our boarders this year, at a time when disease has been rife through the city. This we attribute, first to God's blessing, and secondly to the regular habits of school life, the regular exercise, including the constant practice of calisthenics, which are admirably taught here, and to the infrequent visiting which the boarding pupils do in the town. The last has, no doubt, saved them from contagion.

One school year is so much like another that but little opportunity is given for variety of comment on an occasion like the present. We have one sad record to make, however, that rarely falls to our lot. Carrie B. Moffett died in Easter week in the 13th year of her age. She was a day pupil in the middle department of the School. She was not as intimately known to her teachers as those children who make a part of our own household, but they knew enough of her to find her a dutiful and affectionate pupil, in a marked degree, and experienced the keenest sorrow for her loss.

Another shade has been cast over the pleasures of this day, in the absence from the graduating class, through domestic affliction, of one of our most faithful and diligent girls. She has been with us many years, and has stood high in the regard of all her teachers, as one of the good girls. She now mourns the death of her brother, a young man, suddenly cut down in the prime and bloom of life, and our warmest sympathies go out to her and her sorrowing family.

One thing we observe, of this graduating class, that the members of it have been longer with us than in most cases. Two of them have received almost their entire education here, from childhood. We have claimed for the school that this was a great advantage, and we trust this advantage will be illustrated in these cases. We shall be greatly disappointed if, when these girls are put to the tests which must come with the discipline and duties of life, they do not prove equal to them.

We are much pleased to say of the history of the school this year, that it has been more satisfactory than for many former years for the steady [illegible] of the pupils to their [illegible] The [illegible] the anxiety to [illegible] of the home [illegible] cares [illegible] close of term [illegible]

[illegible] draw many pupils away [illegible]

There has been a marked improvement in [illegible] this year [illegible]

While this habit of removing children in [illegible] before the close of the term has [illegible] it [illegible] is very serious [illegible] children, while at school, to engage in [illegible] occupations [illegible] time that ought to be given to study at home [illegible] It is the [illegible] that their lessons [illegible] A party or ball, with all the [illegible] attention that needs [illegible] from a child's energies [illegible] study [illegible] A succession of parties [illegible] which little girls are [illegible] entertainment of the public [illegible] their beds [illegible] appetite and nervousness.

It may gratify a weak vanity to see their faces duly paraded in the papers with the customary [illegible] ations, but this is a poor reward for the [illegible] loss and damage that must come to the child from this most unwise dissipation. Of course in the case of the day pupils this is a matter that is beyond our control, but I would venture to [illegible] with parents not to expose their children to these exciting and demoralizing influences. The time set apart by allowed for their education in the most essential branches, is too limited and too precious, to have it abridged by such trifles as these. The demands of society and the dissipations of public place of amusement will come all soon enough. Now is the time to keep your children under the shadow of the home, and within those sweet, wholesome influences that are to strengthen and fortify them against the allurements of that pretentious and vapid thing which calls itself fashionable society. Keep these susceptible and pliant natures away from that as long as you possibly can, and while they are children, require of them that they speak as children, think as children, dress as children and conduct themselves as children, that when they become men and women they may know how and why to put away childish things.

We think it would be of great assistance to our teachers if parents would cultivate more sympathy and interest in this most important work. While we are grateful for the kind appreciation of their labors that some have invariably shown, we think there are many who do not look upon this matter in the true light, and who fail to appreciate the care and attention, and little realize the labor and anxiety, the weary days and wakeful nights that come of undertaking to train the intellects, the consciences and the hearts of a large number of children. As I am not directly engaged in the duties of the school room, and am freed from the details of study and discipline, I can speak more freely on this matter. And when I witness the assiduity with which these teachers perform their labors, and know how perseveringly and conscientiously they strive to overcome the indifference, the dullness and the waywardness of their pupils, and how they bear and forbear with them, I can but regret that they have not the full sympathy of all the parents, and that they are not always honored and sustained in their noble undertaking. If there is any calling in life in which men and women deserve honor and praise this is such a calling.

Next to the pastor the teacher should be esteemed very highly in love for his work's sake. And yet how many parents have no other estimate of this service than that which is represented by the bill for tuition, and give a "credulous ear" to any tale of an indolent, undisciplined and wayward child, over against the judgment, experience and conscience of the most capable and trustworthy teacher. We would say then to parents: Send your children to no school where you cannot send along with them your confidence in the ability, the judgment and the faithfulness of the teacher. And having done this, then give a deaf ear to childish criticisms and complaints, and do not defeat the purpose you have in view by attempting to control the details of discipline and to direct the manner and order of studies.

To the pupils here assembled, I can say in the name of the teachers, that your general progress and deportment for the past year has been worthy of commendation. There has been an advance and improvement that is full of promise for the future. The examinations just past have given great satisfaction, and your teachers take leave of you for your needed vacation with the comforting feeling that their labors have brought forth good fruit. Not only with your improvement in the knowledge of books do they congratulate you and themselves, but they hope they see improvement of a higher character still. They have endeavored to teach you the worthlessness and wickedness of show, sham and pretension. They have sought to point out to you the vast difference between being learned, wise and good and seeming to be so. They have endeavored to teach you "the sanctity of duty." For without that all intellectual progress is little worth. If they have succeeded in that, they have [illegible] good ground for [illegible] When you have gained this point, when you can say, I will do this because I ought, I will not do this [illegible] I will keep the rule [illegible] you have gained a [illegible] power of [illegible] and set your feet [illegible] which, step by step will lead you to the [illegible] rest and best rewards of life.

[illegible] leave [illegible] chosen as your [illegible] these words: "I serve the best." This is most expressive [illegible] for the best [illegible] labors are [illegible] by this principle [illegible] be their aim and happy will [illegible]

I will detain you but now my dear children [illegible] moment longer. Very pleasant have you made [illegible] and we hope you will have many [illegible] times of all these past years. We only [illegible] started you on the road [illegible] are to follow [illegible] which now opens before you. We hope that you have gained some knowledge and some principles here that will attend you in ways of pleasantness and paths of peace, that will bring an [illegible] reward for all the time and labor spent here.

The charms of home are now drawing you home with irresistible power, and great will be our disappointment if you do not return to the duties and responsibilities awaiting you there, with new zeal and enjoyment.

The sort of training you have received here has not dealt much with "Woman's Rights." It seeks rather to point to and prepare you for woman's nature, believing that these are of far more importance than the others, and that she who is faithfully performs her duties will be best obtain her rights.

So will you learn to wait patiently for all things to which you put your hand and for which you hope.

If you live well and wisely in the present, the future will be brighter and better, and your waiting will be abundantly rewarded. God in His love and goodness ever keeps the good wine of life "to the last." If you secure the wisdom that cometh from above, to-morrow will be not only as to-day, but more abundant in joy and blessedness.

Over the richest, tenderest glow
Sets round the autumnal sun—
But there sight fails; no heart may know
The bliss when life is done.

AMUSEMENTS.

"YARIL." The Wyman combination is now over on the Sound heading for Portland, which will be reached next week. Only two performances will be given, at New Market theatre on the evenings of June 15th and 16. The Victoria Colonist speaks in very complimentary terms of the first appearance of "Yaril" in that city. Among other matters the Colonist says: "This decidedly original and humorous play was presented at Theatre Royal last evening to a fine house. The piece abounds in quaint wit, comic songs and ludicrous situations. Mr. Al. Wyman, who appeared in the role of a blundering but warm hearted and honest Switzer, was irresistible. His [illegible] created the most uproarious merriment from beginning to end, while his escapes were well timed [illegible] [illegible] Miss Lola Wilson, a most charming young young lady and actress. [illegible] style and action Miss Wilson is very natural. [illegible] are prettily delivered and her [illegible] captivating. In the prologue, as Mrs. Marten, her acting was very pathetic, and in the [illegible] parts, in which she personated Louisa, Yaril's daughter, she appeared successively [illegible] with a learned dog, is a [illegible]

MASONIC CONCERT. Tuesday evening of next week the second grand concert will be given in New Market Theatre for the benefit of the Masonic board of relief. Among the soloists [illegible] are Miss Rightmire, the pleasing contralto of San Francisco, Miss Josephine Welty, who has [illegible] Mrs. J. P. Wyatt, Mrs. [illegible], Miss Lizzie Anderson, and Messrs. A. A. Frank[illegible], W. F. Burns [illegible] Kohn. [illegible] will be open at [illegible]

PORTLAND MECHANICS' FAIR

Election of Officers—The First Cavalry Band Engaged—Improvements for this Year.

At a meeting of the directors of the Portland Mechanics' Fair Association held yesterday Mr. [illegible] was unanimously re-elected president, W. B. Honeyman was re-elected [illegible], Wm. [illegible] treasurer, and [illegible]

The following standing committees were appointed:

[illegible]—A. M. Morgan, W. B. Honeyman, Chas. [illegible]

[illegible]—[illegible] Barrett.

Music and Decoration—Wm. Kapus, S. G. Skidmore, A. H. Morgan.

[illegible]—W. Weidler, S. G. Skidmore, A. T. Smith.

Gas and Water—John Barrett, W. B. Honeyman, D. P. Thompson.

Power and Machinery—W. B. Honeyman, John Barrett, A. T. Smith.

Art—Wm. M. Ladd, D. P. Thompson, Chas. Hodge.

So as not to interfere with the Washington county fair which begins October [illegible], the Mechanics' fair will commence October 13th and close the 29th. The interior of the pavilion will be painted and whitewashed this summer, and a splendid prismatic fountain will be erected in the center of the main hall.

The celebrated 1st cavalry band of Walla Walla, has been engaged for the fair. This announcement will be read with pleasure by hundreds who enjoy good music. Arrangements have been made to secure a number of artisans of different trades to work in the building during the fair.

MRS. MACKAY'S NEW DRESS.

At last Mrs. Mackay is to have a new dress. The news has been telegraphed to all parts of the country, and every loyal heart rejoices. The wife of the famous millionaire can at last mingle in Puritan society; she is no longer like Flora McFlimsey; she at last has something to wear. It is a dampener, however, to know that the dress is only a second-hand one, made by Worth for the Empress Eugenie, and thrown upon his hands because it didn't fit. It is very neatly trimmed.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE AT PORTLAND.

DR. ATKINSON'S LECTURE.

(COMMUNICATED.)

Dr. Atkinson's address before the Teachers' Institute last Saturday was one of that gentleman's best efforts. Taking the subject nearest his heart, the American system of public schools, he treated it with a degree of eloquence and patriotic ardor that is refreshing in these days of captious criticism. His account of the present status of public education was based on his own observations, supplemented by interviews with many of the prominent educators of our land. The lecturer's main object in going east was not to visit the educational institutions, nor to confer with teachers or others interested in educational work; but since this is an object of, we may say, supreme interest to the lecturer he could not let the opportunity escape of treating this a "strong side issue." His first visit was to Gen. Eaton of the Bureau of education, a commencement at the fountain head. His first question was a serious one, and directly to the point: "General, what has been the effect of these adverse criticisms upon our public schools?" The answer was as direct and terse: "Simply a ripple upon a broad and steadily moving stream. It has been as if some had thrown a pebble into a lake, nothing more." Another point mentioned by the lecturer was one in connection with an article which had recently appeared in the North American Review. The writer, though a friend to our school system, thought that the results obtained from this system are not commensurate with the labor and expense bestowed upon it; that it is a pure piece of machinery and not one constituted to develop individuality in children. For this reason the writer thinks that the public money should be divided, and as each church organization is more or less a family, and as each family is expected to know most about its own affairs and the desires of its members, that these sums should be given to the individual bodies for educational purposes. The Dr. said that he had asked something similar to this of Gen. Eaton, and the answer was as prompt as it was significant: "This will never be done; the American people will never allow their cherished idol to slip from their hands, in order to be delegated to any sectarian bodies whatsoever. The schools must stand or fall with the republic."

The lecturer then spoke of the signs of progress to be seen everywhere. Improved school buildings are but an expression of improved thought, of improved purpose. Formerly the school house was but the work of mechanics, now it is built by the great educational idea. Young cities have this advantage over older ones, that unencumbered by these crude makeshifts of the past, they can build upon all that is latest and best. Another prominent sign of the present time is an enlarged scope of educational work. The lecturer here alluded to the good results obtained by a comparison of school systems from all parts of the world, through bureaus and international conferences. These systems are collected, placed under the focus of the American lens, to be examined and studied for just what they are worth. This examination shows that all nations come to America to learn. A celebrated Frenchman said to Gen. Eaton, when speaking of the communistic troubles throughout Europe:

"You in America do not know the value of your schools as a quieting influence."

In England ten times as great a proportion of children are in the public schools to-day as were in them twenty years ago.

To make a just comparison between the public school system and any other, there must be an "open hand." The system or the body that makes an attack lays itself open to criticism by virtue of this attack. He who assails the public schools, be he individual or a corporate body, must be able to show some system better than theirs or his assault is in vain. The strength of the public schools is that they are in open light—as free as the light of the sun; that they are under the supervision of the whole American people.

The lecturer likewise visited some of the schools in Vermont, many in Boston, Providence and [illegible]. At every place he saw signs of advancement, but nowhere of retrogression. [illegible] to Providence was a call upon a Prof. Morey, principal of a large and flourishing private school. Some distance up this same street [illegible] street stands a fine high school and in the neighborhood several grammar schools. After some time spent in general conversation, the Doctor asked Prof. Morey:

"What is your feeling toward the common schools, and what is their influence upon your school?"

He answered immediately, [illegible] most cordially the hand [illegible] and say to them Godspeed. Instead of being a detriment to me, they are of great assistance to my school, and I think I can say I have the same effect upon them."

The lecturer mentioned incidentally that he had heard the same thing from many of the best educators both in free and in corporate schools throughout our state.

"A great deal has been said against the school system, even in Boston," said the Doctor, "and yet, as if in the face of this, they have just erected one of the finest educational buildings I have ever seen, and that for higher education, the new Latin school." A prolonged visit was made in the same city at the school of Technology, in company with Mr. Atkinson, a relative of the Doctor's, and one who had given largely to this object. The substance of the gentleman's remarks was this:

"We live in an age of machinery; year by year the call for unskilled labor is decreasing, and thus our poor boys are being pushed to the wall. To remedy this, we must make them skilled in work—we must make them able to compete with adepts from other nations. Notice those boys there, who have put off their good clothes to don the apron of the smith. Those there are making mechanical instruments; those are obtaining chemical analyses to fit them for practical chemists, while these are designing, as preparatory to becoming engineers, draughtsmen, and surveyors. The fruit of this is shown in that their work is equal to that of skilled laborers." Would that one such school could be started in Portland.

The charge made against our common schools thirty or forty years ago was that they were sectarian. This was due to the almost universal use of the Bible in schools. Soon many of the states, among which was New York, discarded the compulsory use of bibles, and immediately the cry went up that the system was a godless one. Some time ago a judge, from a city not far from Portland, made to the lecturer a more sweeping statement, that our common schools are nurseries of immorality. "Where do you live?" said the Doctor.

"Oh, I live in ——," mentioning the place.

"Well, I don't know what kind of a place you've got over there; but as for Portland, I know that isn't so, for the evidence there is all on the other side. For your own sake, I deny the charge."

In this connection the speaker eloquently alluded to a scene he had recently witnessed in Kansas. As he and his wife were riding through a town about 9 o'clock in the morning, they passed as many as three hundred darkey lads and girls on their way to school, well dressed and happy, chatting in merry groups. Turning to his companion, he remarked: "Tell me of the vicious influences of our schools! Can anything that makes children as happy as that be immoral?"

This scene brought to the lecturer's mind an expression of Gen. Eaton's. In referring to the south, he said: "The question no longer is whether the government shall pour out of its largess an educational fund into the lap of the south, but how great that gift shall be."

Dr. Atkinson spoke extemporaneously and no notes were taken at the time, so that the above report is of necessity brief and imperfect.

THE GREEN CORN DANCE.

A Peculiar Indian Ceremony that was Observed in the Gulf States.

[From the Macon, Ga., Mail.]

One among the most important events among the Indians was the annual "Green Corn Dance." This, contrary to the generally received opinion, was a religious festival. So soon as the green corn was ripe enough to eat the chief sent out his order, and on an appointed day the town assembled at the council house. The leaves of a shrub (Ilex vomitoria) were gathered and boiled until a tea of strong purgative properties was made. This was Ussa Yahola, the famous "black drink." After drinking copiously of the black drink the dance began in the council house. The braves were all dressed in their best buckskin; the squaws, in addition to their usual ornaments, wore [illegible] and small bells, which mingled a soft accompaniment to the music [illegible] series of [illegible] and [illegible] motions, [illegible] and intervals of independent, individual motions, according to the fancy of the dancer. The [illegible] continued day and night until [illegible] and the [illegible] was [illegible] Thus [illegible] tended the [illegible] During the entire period the chief was [illegible] many features to the Jewish [illegible] previous liabilities [illegible] ments and ill-feelings [illegible] was the fundamental principle of the Indian [illegible] if the slayer escaped to this [illegible] unobserved, [illegible] sense was paid [illegible] the end of the festival they [illegible] the chief slowly and solemnly addressing them on their obligations to the Great Spirit, Saugh Missoh, and their moral duty toward each other. As they had cleansed their bodies of all impurities, so they should cleanse their minds of all animosities and resentments. They were exhorted to bravery, honesty and faithfulness in the discharge of whatever duty was allotted to them. To this was added an exposition of the tribal laws, with general instructions as to their conduct during the next twelve months, or until the next green corn dance. While the talk was going on not a whisper was heard, nor a movement made, but all sat in the most absorbed attention. Before the talk was begun all fires were extinguished, and when it ended a new fire was made by rubbing two dried sticks together, and the ceremonies closed. The air of solemnity and decorum were observed throughout the entire period of the festival. An old Indian countryman, who has attended many of them, says that the whole affair, from beginning to end, was not only free from levity, but solemnly impressive.

The Future Republican Course.

[From the Boston Journal.]

Public attention has now been called to one of the worst features of the boss system. If we can judge of popular feeling, there has never been a time when bossism was regarded with so much disfavor as the present. Therefore, if republican leaders are wise, if they would place the organization upon a sure basis, they will cease to obey men who assume to be dictators and adopt a policy which will commend itself to the intelligence of the country. Men will be selected for candidates whose character and ability will command the support of intelligent men. Measures will be adopted which will promote the public welfare. In short, the principles of popular government will be recognized.

What is Fame?

[From the New York World.]

"The world knows nothing of its greatest men," and perhaps this is just as well when we consider that Dennis Kearney, Malone, Roscoe Conkling, Henry Ward Beecher, Hartmann the Nihilist, O'Donovan Rossa and Samuel J. Tilden were all arrested in a Chicago gambling hell the other day.

WEDNESDAY, June 8.

There is absolutely nothing to report in the local wheat market. Quotations unchanged—$1 [illegible].

Reports from Walla Walla, published recently, that the wheat crop this year would be a failure, owing to the drouth, were not true. A fortnight ago rain was seriously needed, and just in the nick of time it came. Fields in all parts of Eastern Washington now look well and will yield a large harvest. The average this year is somewhat larger than last and the crop promises to raise last year's figures somewhat, though perhaps not in proportion to the increased acreage, as some damage was done by the recent dry weather. There are no crickets in the Walla Walla valley, and only a few in the Spokan region. Loss from this pest and from grasshoppers will be slight. Hay harvest commences in Eastern Washington shortly after the 1st of July, and grain harvest two weeks later. The hay crops will be very large. Indications are favorable for a large crop of fruit of all varieties. As yet nothing of consequence has been done in the way of shipping fruit from the Walla Walla country, owing to the cost of transportation and the danger, almost certainty, of damage to this class of freight in transit, but several growers have expressed a purpose of making the attempt this year.

Entrances at the custom house to-day:

Am bk Alden Besse, Noyes master, from Hongkong, 117 passengers and full cargo of Chinese merchandise.

Steamship Oregon, Bolles master, from San Francisco, with passengers and the following cargo: [illegible] pkgs sundries, [illegible] tobacco, [illegible] salt, [illegible] soap, [illegible] ware, [illegible] kegs spikes, [illegible] dry goods, [illegible] hats, [illegible] wagons, [illegible] shoes, [illegible] cigars, [illegible] wine, [illegible] clothing, [illegible] crockery, [illegible] merchandise.

NEW YORK FREIGHTS AND MARKETS.

NEW YORK, June 8.—A rather [illegible] two days has put a [illegible] freight [illegible] via Cape Horn, and very little was done at the wharves of California vessels. The [illegible] is the leading vessel, and will [illegible] The week. The [illegible] in the berth of the Farragut [illegible] few days [illegible] very little at late quotations.

Markets are still [illegible].

Wheat—More active with better export demand; [illegible] closed strong.

Pork—Dull, weak.

Lard—15c lower.

Rio coffee—Quiet, very firm.

Refined sugar—Quiet but firm.

Hops—Good demand but small offerings restricts business, prices firm.

Chicago Wheat Market.

Gold and Stock Reports.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 8.

Receipts—Wheat, 95,050 ctls, including [illegible] ctls aboard ship; flour, 9500 qr sks, potatoes, 1100 sks; eggs, 13,800 dozen.

Wheat—There is a demand but it fails to develop a large movement. Buyers are discriminating very closely. Medium Walla Walla sold to-day at $1 80, fob; California coast, $1 [illegible]. Quote choice shipping, $1 87½@1 90.

Barley—Feed—The demand is stimulated by the decline; 135 tons good coast sold at 85c. Quote 77½@85c.

Oats—Market is strong but not quotably higher. Medium Oregon sold to-day at $1 60.

Flour—Market is quiet with prices against sellers. Local dealers are well stocked; there is a small demand for export, prices unchanged.

Rice—China mixed—Very little demand, market easy at $4 85@4 90.

Bags—Hand sewed—Market shows no change.

Salmon—Market is firm, holders are not inclined to sell. We quote as before.

Wool—Market steady at full prices for choice grades; poor qualities difficult to sell except at concessions; sale of poor Eastern Oregon at 20½c. Quote Eastern Oregon, 20@25c; choice Humboldt [illegible] demand is mostly local for Oregon; there is active competition for strictly fancy, faultless in color, strength, dryness and cleanliness from northern counties.

Eggs—Market has a weak undertone.

Butter—Strong and tending higher; choice, 17½c.
